Why Choose Fuji Clean?

In terms of performance energy cost and maintenance Fuji technology is second to none.

How does it work?

Wastewater flows into the Fuji Clean treatment system from the home. The water is cleaned and sent back into the environment through an absorption system. One of the advantages is that the Fuji System does the purification work that is usually done by the soil, in turn allowing a smaller drain field. Because the water is pretreated through the Fuji System, this extends the life of the drain field since clean water is being sent into the absorption system.

A Fuji Clean Treatment System is sometimes required due to county regulations and soil requirements.
